JARNAGINS, CATHLEEN TAYLOR SAYS, WARMED UP IN THEIR ROOMS ON

SAYS SHE WAS LOVED BY ANOTHER "REGGIE" TO NAME HIS BABY CATHLEEN

VANDERBILT LITTLE ONE IS TO BE CALLED —AFTER HER MOTHER.

Former Newburyport Couple to Air Quarrel in the Divorce Court.

SERIOUS CHARGES MADE

The little town of Newburyport is all aflutter with gossip over the divorce suit of Charles M. Byrne of No. 228 Smith street, Brooklyn, brought against his wife, Kate, formerly one of the belles of the town. The papers in the suit were filed some time ago and unless Mrs. Byrne's lawyers succeed in having the case postponed it will be heard this week.

Legal charges are made by the husband against his wife, and the testimony will be sensational. Up to the time of her marriage with Byrne, sixteen years ago, Mrs. Byrne lived in Newburyport. It was there that she first met Byrne, then a sailor and decorator, with a small business, and it was also in Newburyport that she met the man who figures so prominently in the case. The marriage took place in Newburyport.

To Keep Case Secret.
Two reasons are given why Mrs. Byrne is in Massachusetts, when both husband and wife live in New York. One is the desire to keep the proceedings secret from friends in Brooklyn. The other is Byrne's wish to have the issue decided by the laws which had led him.

Byrne is a prominent politician and president of the Eighth Assembly District Democratic Club, in Brooklyn. It is sixteen years since the Byrnes were married, and for fifteen years of that time they have lived apart. Byrne driving his wife an allowance named in the papers drawn up when they separated. Mrs. Byrne has spent much of her time at her former home since she left her husband. The case which led Byrne to seek a divorce is known to the private detective engaged by Byrne as "J. Murphy" of Lawrence, and is said to be comparatively clear. Mrs. Byrne is said to be a very attractive woman. In his complaint and in affidavits now in possession of his lawyer, accuses his wife of being infatuated with "Murphy." He alleges that she spent much time with him in August and September of last year, and that for part of those two months she lived in a boarding house in Lexington avenue, Manhattan, owned by "Mr. and Mrs. Murphy."

Called for Allowance.
At that time Mrs. Byrne was very wealthy to her husband's place of business to collect allowance. On one of these occasions, after Byrne had become suspicious, detectives followed her. They say she went to the Lexington avenue house; that they took quarters in the same place, saw her "Murphy" go in and out together, followed them to restaurants for breakfast, dinner and supper, and saw them go to Coney Island just after she had not her money from Byrne.

Mrs. Byrne has denied each and every allegation, and has retained lawyers to battle for her reputation.

BALL NEWS ON SALE IN 42 SEC.
The BOSTON AMERICAN and City Young performed great feats in the baseball world yesterday—the former in reporting and the latter in winning one of the greatest games on record. The AMERICAN was the only newspaper in Boston to publish a complete account of the game and to tell the result of a struggle which kept every "fan" in the city in a frenzy of excitement from 12 o'clock to 12:30.

The evening run was made previous to 6:30 o'clock. The "game" was in the hands of competitors. The AMERICAN kept its form open and its press ready until the only man to score crossed the plate. Then it scored a full account of the contest and the game ended the BOSTON AMERICAN.

The BOSTON AMERICAN was the only newspaper to tell last evening's result. The crowd in front of the arena where it was held was so large that it was impossible to get a full account of the game. EDWARD JARNAGIN AND HIS BRIDE, BOTH FORMER BOSTONIANS, QUARRELED ON THE EVE OF THEIR TRAGIC DEATHS IN THEIR NEW HOME IN CHICAGO, ACCORDING TO THE TESTIMONY GIVEN AT THE CHICAGO INQUEST BY H. J. SCHOENLANS, A TAILOR, AND REPORTED IN DISPATCHES TO THE BOSTON AMERICAN.

"I had called frequently since Jarnagin, and they were very friendly," said Schoenlans. "Then I called on the evening before their bodies were found there in something wrong. Mr. Jarnagin was frigid in his manner. Mrs. Jarnagin was seated at the table and did not look up or recognize me when I entered. Both seemed angry at something, and under restraint."

DOCTOR SAID "POISONED."
Dr. T. S. Hogan, the first physician called after the bodies were found, declared that Jarnagin and his wife were poisoned. The physician's wife, who was present, said that Jarnagin was frigid in his manner. Mrs. Jarnagin was seated at the table and did not look up or recognize me when I entered. Both seemed angry at something, and under restraint."

LITTLE FOOD IN STOMACH.
"Mrs. Jarnagin's stomach contained little food," said Dr. Hogan. "The bodies were found in the room shortly after 9 o'clock in the custody of Inspector Milton. She was neatly attired, wearing a black dress, white blouse and white waist showed under a three-quarter length light gray skirt, and a blue and white apron had surrounded her attractive features. She appeared to be nervous and glanced about the room frequently and bowed to a few friends among the spectators."

In the front of the room were seated Mrs. Frank H. Kimball, the young woman's mother, and also her sister, both of whom she recognized.

RARE ESCAPES DOYLE IS AFTER IN BIG WRECK
TRINTON, N. J., May 12.—One of the most disastrous freight wrecks the Pennsylvania company has suffered in several years happened about 3:30 this morning, when a fast freight from Philadelphia to Jersey City plunged into a landslide caused by the overloading of the Delaware & Raritan canal near the Greenway avenue tunnel.

A. A. Sherb, of Jersey City, the engineer, had an almost miraculous escape. He did not leave the wreck of the train until three cars for nearly an hour with only a compass in the wreck. The wrecked train spread over four foot-locks and trapped sleeping nearly 70 people, who are being rescued.

ETHEL KIMBALL HELD IN $1,000 ON CHARGE OF PASSING BAD CHECKS.

To her great love for horses he attributed the present predicament of pretty Ethel Kimball, who today was held to $1,000 bail in the Cambridge court on the charge of passing worthless checks on thirty different persons.

Frank H. Kimball, the girl's father, who resides at No. 81 Foster street, Brighton, said that there was no reason why his daughter should have done such a thing. He said that he would pay off all of the checks that she had passed and that on body would lose a penny because of her action. The case will come up for a further hearing May 17.

RUMORS OF A CONSTITUTION

VIENNA, May 12.—Russian advice received here today states that the conviction is growing among the intellectual classes of Russia that the country has had a decided sufficiency of absolutism. The eyes of the czar, it is asserted, will be opened to this fact, and his majesty will be led, of his own initiative, to give the empire a constitution and call a Parliament.

It is declared the czar has long been considering the advisability of summoning delegates from all the provincial Zemstvos (local councils), and that Prince Chtomsky was recently ordered to elaborate a scheme for constitutional government.

It is believed, say the advices, that a point has now been reached, and that Russia is on the threshold of mighty changes.

Long though the case occupied the court, the judge's opinion was a strong plea for the protection of the public against the society pet. He said that the society pet was a man who was always ready to take a loan from the church treasury, and who was always ready to default on the loan.

WOMAN IN ARSON CASE TELLS STORY OF FALL FOR LOVE

Edith A. Willis Accuses McPherson of Telling Her to Set Fire.
Supposed Wife Says That Misery Came to Her Instead of Joy.

A GLIMPSE AT THE HEART OF A WOMAN.

THE PART.
"When I first met Frank I knew he was a man of high, hearty country type. He took my hand and said, 'I love you.' When he kissed me my heart went to him through my lips. God, home, family, nothing stood in the way of his ardent love, and I went to live with him."

THE PRESENT.
"Isn't it pitiful? I have sacrificed youth, love, hope and respect for this man. Now I am cruelly abandoned to my fate."

Edith A. Willis, for years known as the wife of Frank H. McPherson, whom she accuses of bidding her to set fire to their house in Sharon and who is held in $200 bail to appear against McPherson on charge of perjury, tells the AMERICAN the pathetic story of her downfall for love of a man.

McPherson, whom she met only as a case of bidding her to commit arson for the little insurance of $700 on the Sharon home, but also of leading her from the path of rectitude and virtue, was acquitted on the charge of arson on account of variance in the testimony. He has since been arrested for perjury and held in $200 bail.

BY EDITH A. WILLIS.

LOVE brought me misery, not happiness. I know too well the price that a woman must pay for an infatuation. I can stop now from the path which my parents taught me to follow and let me live the valley of tears. A trail of tears marks the journey that took me to a prison cell. But if they could wash my sins away, I would gladly shed an ocean more.

Was I pitiful? I met a married man, young and robust for his time. Then, when my heart was torn by the thought of my fate, I told one man that I would sacrifice my life for him. That ceremony was needed to make our marriage legal.

"I trusted him so implicitly that I was ready to follow him to the ends of the earth. He was a man of high, hearty country type. He took my hand and said, 'I love you.' When he kissed me my heart went to him through my lips. God, home, family, nothing stood in the way of his ardent love, and I went to live with him."

REFINED AND STILL PRETTY.
The soft blue eyes of Edith A. Willis told the story of her life. She was a refined, delicate complexion and fine features. Years of suffering have not dimmed her eyes, nor has the prison life. She is of good family, educated and refined. Her mother and father were prominent in the community. She was always a little quiet, but her eyes were scattered in three states.

GIFTS TO HER

$9,000 Annuity When She Remarried and a Washington Home.

PAPERS FILED IN NEWPORT.

Even trust deeds, each of many pages, disposing of the estate of Gordon McKay, the inventor, who executed them during the last sixteen years of his life, have been filed at Newport, R. I., by record, by F. F. Sawyer, the principal trustee.

The deeds show various provisions Mr. McKay made for the young and beautiful woman who he married late in life, and who later obtained a divorce and married M. Van Rensselaer, a German diplomat.

When she was about to remarry, Mr. McKay withdrew some of the $25,000, and after her marriage gave her more. By trust and deed of November 28, 1885, he gave her an annuity of $9,000.

The two sons were given annuities of each, until they became twenty-one, and Mrs. Anna F. Ford and Miss Florence Ford, of Cambridge, mother and sister of Mrs. McKay, each annuities of $2,000.

June 22, 1890, when divorce proceedings were pending, he made a contract giving her a $25,000 home, annuity and stock.

January 20, 1891, Mr. McKay provided that if she remarried the annuity be reduced from $9,000 to $3,000, and that the provision for the home be revoked. But by a deed dated June 8, 1892, when his former wife was about to remarry, he not only reestablished the annuity of $9,000, but added an annuity of $2,500, to all $11,500, and let her occupy the house in Washington for life.

Boston and Providence were thus held up as the wicked cities of New England by Rev. Robert Cameron, D. D., at the recognition service of Rev. Low House Church, the pastor of the Street Baptist Church, Providence, R. I.

PEOPLE DEMAND MORE BENCHES IN THE BOSTON PARKS

LAY OF THE SEATLESS.
Oh, Mr. Doan, won't you listen
To everybody's plea
Voiced daily in the columns
Of Hearst's AMERICAN?
Then, thousand voices holler
For a place to sit our down
Upon the shady commons,
The pride of Boston town.
Here we go to ask Carnegie
To stake us for a seat
When at the noon-day recess
We hie us from the heat!
The Aldermen have carriages
To take us for a ride,
Vouchsafe us seats, oh fathers,
You can if you but will.
A. E. Mc.

WHAT the people of Boston, who are aware of the lack of benches on the commons and in other parks, are decidedly displeased with the attitude of the city officials on the subject is proved by the letters which pour into the AMERICAN office, approving the demand for more seats.

A dominant note in the many communications is the need for better accommodation for the mothers and their little ones, who on pleasant afternoons in the Spring and Summer are unable to find room on the wooden benches.
